

My idea for the Kerala tourism app is a houseboat adventure game. The game would let you upgrade and design your houseboat as you travel through different landscapes of Kerala. This would allow the user to enjoy the game while becoming interested in the beautiful nature. This could open up many different possibilities from interactive tours through the game, too a venue to provide information on why people should visit Kerala. I myself have never been but always dreamed of living in Kerala at some point in my life. You look at the vast green lush and just get lost in its beauty. The ocean views could take anyone individuals breath away. My app idea is different because it creates a chance for the user to have fun and receive information while playing a game. Children and adults the same could enjoy this simple game and maybe influence them to travel to Kerala. I am aware you asked for a page long summary of my idea. I feel that the vivid landscapes of Kerala pretty much make my point for me. By adding an enjoyable game and some of the greatest scenery in the world the idea can't fail.
