Alami Kali
Where history narrates tales of valour and faith, a dying ember of tradition flickers – Alami Kali. Imagine, in the vibrant tapestry of Kasaragod, painted with emerald hills and sapphire seas, this popular ritual art form dances on the brink of extinction.

Born in the shadow of Alamipalli, its story echoes with the clash of swords and the cries of battle. Once performed by ‘Alamis,’ the brave soldiers of Tipu Sultan, it commemorated the Karbala war, a poignant chapter in Islamic history. But Alami Kali is more than just a remembrance; it’s a confluence of faith, where Hindu melodies weave between the rhythmic steps of Muslim performers, their bodies painted with charcoal and hope.

Imagine wanderers, cloaked in the fading glory of a bygone era, visiting homes, their movements etched with a forgotten history. Their dance, a silent poetry, resonates with the beats of a forgotten drum, their voices echoing the message of religious harmony, a testament to the region’s vibrant soul.

Today, Alami Kali stands on the precipice, a flickering testament to a rich past. Cultural events become stages for revival, where this dying ember is nurtured back to life. Witness this dance of history and faith, and carry the torch of Alami Kali forward, a luminous legacy waiting to be reborn.

Madhur Vinayaka Temple
Where the whispers of the Mogral river, also known as Madhuvahini, mingle with the prayers of devotees, lies the Madhur Sree Madanantheshwara–Siddhivinayaka temple, a radiant jewel 7 km from Kasaragod town. Though Lord Shiva, the destroyer of desires, reigns supreme as Madanantheshwara, it is Lord Ganapathi, the elephant–headed remover of obstacles facing the south in the main sanctum, who draws the most fervent prayers. Legends dance on the temple walls, whispering tales of Tipu Sultan, a mighty ruler who turned his blade away upon reaching this sacred ground. As per legend, an old woman, unearthed the ‘Udbhava Murthy,’ the self-manifested embodiment of Shiva, now worshipped with unwavering devotion. Three tiers grace the temple’s dome, each layer resembling the mighty back of an elephant, Gaja Prishta. Gleaming copper wraps the dome, reflecting the sun’s caress. Step inside the namaskara mandapam, and be dazzled by the intricate carvings of celestial beings, each stroke imbued with divine power. Look up, and let your gaze wander amidst the scenes from the Ramayana, meticulously etched on the wooden dome, the idol of the divine visible even from afar.
Enchanting historical narratives echo through the elegant Malik Ibn Dinar Mosque in Kasaragod, a sentinel of faith etched in stone. Imagine, a jewel of Kerala architecture, built by the revered traveller Dinar, once a simple haven with a thatched roof, now a two-storey wonder with majestic columns. The mosque is believed to have been built in AD 642. Intricate carvings and peaceful ambience cast a spell, transporting you to a bygone era where Dinar, the revered missionary, first planted the seeds of Islam in Malabar. Celebrate his arrival with vibrant festivities each year, or witness the grand Uroos festival every three years, honouring his spirit. The Uroos culminates with Annadanam, where food is compassionately served to all, embodying the spirit of sharing and caring for the community. Time has touched the mosque, leaving an echo in its three distinct blocks, yet the central one retains its original glory, a whisper of its humble beginnings.

A stone’s throw from the Kasaragod railway station, find solace in the mosque’s tranquil embrace. Step through the over bridge to discover a haven for weary souls, a resting area bathed in the calming breeze, offering a breathtaking vista where the Chandragiri meets the endless sea.
