WHY KERALA 34
Slow ripples in the water let you know that you are not alone. A kingfisher sweeps in from afar and as your gaze turns to the water, a small herd of muddy baby elephants playfully make their way to the shore, curiously observing the onlookers gazing at them in wonder from their boats. Bison and deer graze in patches, as the occasional pack of wild dogs can be seen roaming the outskirts of the tree lines, carefully patrolling the entire forest. Ancient tree trunks emerge from the water, sentries of a time when humans were just a tiny speck on the world map. This is Periyar Tiger Reserve, among the last protected spaces on the planet where people can still get an up close and personal glance at an entire forest go about its day.
Situated in the ever-bustling Thekkady region in Idukki, Periyar is nestled in the upper reaches of the Western Ghats. Both the Periyar and Pamba Rivers emanate from the depths of the forest, which covers a colossal land mass of around 777 sq. km. The terrain here is varied, including tropical evergreen forests, tropical semi-evergreen forests, moist deciduous forests, marshy grasslands and eucalyptus plantations. This area sees annual average rainfall of around 1700 mm, with the October to May being the most recommended times to visit the area. The construction of Mullaperiyar Dam in the erstwhile kingdom of Travancore in 1895 led to the formation of an artificial lake in its middle of the Sanctuary. This is the special vantage point from which most visitors get to experience its beauty through boat rides that run throughout the day. Parts of the Sanctuary spill into Kottayam and Pathanamthitta districts as well. Tea, cardamom, pepper and coffee plantations surround the Sanctuary with vast and seemingly endless stretches of greenery.
Its biodiversity is what ranks Periyar high among Kerala’s most precious treasures. The sheer variety of species here is magical. Declared a sanctuary in 1950 and a tiger reserve in 1978, it plays host to over 1965 flowering plants including 171 grass species and 143 species of orchids. The latest estimates on tigers put their numbers at around 35, with the other regularly spotted species here being the Asian Elephant, Indian Bison, Sambar Deer, Indian Wild Dog, Leopard, Barking Deer and the Smooth-Coated Otter. Some of the rarer species in these parts include the Lion-Tailed Macaque, Bonnet Macaques and the Nilgiri Langur. The Nilgiri Tahr, an endemic mountain goat, can be viewed in the higher rocky areas of the Sanctuary. Lovers of avian life are also in for a treat as the Periyar Wildlife Sanctuary is home to about 265 species including migrant birds. Some of the common birds here that your eyes can feast on include the Malabar Grey Hornbill, The Indian Pied Hornbill, White Bellied Treepie, many species of Drongos, Woodpeckers, Flycatchers, Babblers and the magnificent Malabar Trogon.

Ecotourism

This planet we are on nurtures over 7 billion inhabitants on a daily basis. While its marvels are beyond the realm of any one person’s imagination, it is easy to notice the damages that are being caused on each and every front, due to the rise in population and the spread of civilization. Even the uninhabited corners of Mother Earth are now being turned into urban centres, and this affects the fragile balance that has kept the planet afloat this entire time.

Tourism is a great bonding element, mixing and mashing cultural experiences from across the world. People gain empathy for those they may have nothing in common with, with places their ancestors may never have heard of or traditions they could never have even dreamt of. Hence, the combination of environmentally driven ecological sites being used as prime tourist destinations leads to the wonderful concept of ecotourism.
Significance of Ecotourism

Ecotourism lets people appreciate the many boons that Mother Earth has bestowed us with. It is the epitome of making people realize the true value of the treasures that we are endangering with our reckless actions. It is the clarion call that resonates within one’s soul in a seamless but provocative manner, evoking the basic empathy that is the first step in battling the environmental dangers we are facing in this day and age.
Ecotourism in Periyar

Periyar and its surroundings represent one of Kerala’s firmest commitments to the ecotourism movement. Packages, nature walks and the lodgings provided here are a testament to the same, with people being given a modern experience in a completely raw and untouched surrounding. This area has been carefully shaped for years, with the locals combining with the authorities to create a safe haven to cultivate and revitalize many of the species that have thrived here for aeons. It is a beautiful story, dating back to the times the Sanctuary was instituted and the entire community came together to ensure its originality was maintained for our future generations to witness and learn from.
The majestic trees and peeking wildlife that greet you during your journey are hallmarks of Kerala and its endless bounty of natural beauty. Much of our lore and tradition emanates from these parts, and they are treasure troves of our past and heritage. They are priceless cultural landmarks, behemoths of history and proud jewels that adorn our vast landscape. Kerala and its people have known for a long time the immense responsibility they have inherited from their ancestors; true crusaders who ensured the well-being of this land for centuries. It is now our moment, our time in history, to repay the gifts that the land has blessed us with.

Hence, the people and governments at all levels have come together to formulate ways to conserve and protect the myriad floral and faunal species that grace our unique landscape.

Concerted efforts have been made in the last few decades, alongside budgetary allotments and specific policy changes, that has made Kerala one among the pioneers in the Ecotourism movement around the world. Being a region with such an abundance of natural resources, it seems only fitting that we set an example and lead the way in the global resistance against any threats to our environment.
